City Council cannot overturn sick-leave veto

Employee rights. The council shot down the paid-sick-leave bill for the second time in three years on Thursday.

City Councilman Bill Greenlee thought the second time was the charm.

"I thought this time we had it," he said, "And it fell that little short."

For the second time in three years, City Council did not post the requisite 12 votes to overturn Mayor Michael Nutter's veto of the proposed paid sick leave bill.

Greenlee, the bill's sponsor, said he could not score one crucial vote.

"The one word I would use is 'disappointed,'" Greenlee said.

Quoted

"I thought this time we had it, and it fell that little short. The one word I would use is 'disappointed.' There was a whole lot of work done by a whole lot of people."

GREENLEE

Under the proposal, workers would have been entitled to one hour of sick leave for every 40 hours worked. Companies that employ between six and 20 employees would have been required to offer upward of four sick days per year.

Large companies would have been required to offered upward of seven sick days.

A stipulation for domestic abuse victims would have allowed sick days to be used for personal reasons.

Is there energy for a third round?

"I would never say never," Greenlee said. "But there was a lot of work done by whole lot of people on this and I don't want to go through that again."

Dish it out

Bigger dishes means bigger waists

A Temple University study suggests kids are at greater risk of being overweight if they use adult-size dishware. The study, published in the latest edition of medical journal Pediatrics, concludes that children using larger plates and bowls served themselves more food and ate 50 percent of the calories they had dished out. Temple researchers analyzed the eating habits of 42 first-grade students in the study. Half of the students used plates and bowls twice as big as those used by their peers.

Stoppage. Man's belt buckle stops bullet, second victim critical

A 38-year-old man's belt buckle stopped a bullet yesterday in a South Philadelphia shooting, police said.

Edward Lyons, 24, was charged with shooting the 38-year-old and another man, 24, in the abdomen. The second victim is in critical condition at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania.

The first victim was shot and the bullet lodged in his belt buckle. It never penetrated his body. The weapon was recovered on the front porch of a nearby home.

Lyons is charged with attempted murder and aggravated assault. METRO

Double shooting

Two men killed

Police are investigating two overnight deadly shootings.

The first occurred on Wylie Street in North Philadelphia. The victim, 21, was shot on the street.

The second was on Lansdowne Avenue in West Philadelphia. A 24-year-old man was shot multiple times in his torso. METRO

Teens shot. Two teenagers, one adult shot near Overbrook

Three people were shot near Overbrook High School on Thursday morning, reports say.

The three, which included two teenagers, were shot near the football team's practice fields, at 59th Street and Lancaster Avenue, around 4 p.m.

A 17-year-old student is in critical condition after suffering gunshot wounds to the arm and chest, officials said.

A second 17-year-old was found with a gunshot wound in the buttocks at a nearby restaurant, officials said.

The third victim, a 21-year-old, was shot in the back. METRO

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

SEPTA. Execs say policy does not mean free rides for all

Mike Liberi, chief officer of buses and trolleys for SEPTA, was adamant: "There are no free rides."

In response to a Metro story that quoted an internal memo informing employees of a tweak regarding fare collection, officials and operators were not instructed to give free trips.

"Everyone is expected to pay," Liberi said.

An updated memo, which was distributed to employees a few weeks back, reads: "Employees are required to 'check and request' a fare of all passengers. Passengers unable or unwilling to pay the fare shall be permitted to ride."

It tells drivers to document the time and date of the missed fare, but to avoid possible altercations between drivers and riders.

"The whole idea of the memo was to avoid confrontation," said Francis E. Kelly, SEPTA's assistant general manager.

SEPTA spokeswoman Jerri Williams said this is not a fare policy change — that requires a public hearing — but a customer service rule changed "to decrease incidents of assaults on operators stemming from fare disputes." TOMMY ROWAN

Quoted

"Operators are advised to take no direct action against fare evaders and instead record and report the incident to the Control Center." WILLIAMS

Israeli consul general touts 'the real Israel'

Yaron Sideman, who was recently appointed Israeli consul general to the Mid-Atlantic Region, will be celebrating the 65th anniversary of the State of Israel on Monday at the National Museum of American Jewish History.

He is determined that Philadelphians get to know the real Israel.

"I am not here to just talk about Iran and the Palestinian conflict," he said. "I am here to educate the public about a diverse and multicultural country, which is at the forefront of technological innovation."

Yaron Sideman

Sideman recently co-sponsored with state Rep. Michael Fitzpatrick a roundtable that brought together Bucks County businessmen and an Israeli trade representative. Sideman highlights a recent Temple University study that found the 59 Israeli companies in the greater Philadelphia region contribute $1.6 billion to the local economy and have created more than 2,500 jobs locally.

Also, Sideman is working with officials on legislation that would make Holocaust education mandatory in schools.

He also works with local cultural institutions that want to showcase Israeli artists. Jazz group the Rimon Ensemble will give a free concert Saturday at St. Joe's University

Senate votes to open debate on gun control

Safety. The Senate voted 68-31 to open debate on Obama's proposals to expand background checks for gun buyers.

The Senate cleared the way on Thursday for an emotional, weeks-long debate on proposals to curb gun violence, rejecting an effort by conservative Republicans to block consideration of gun-control legislation prompted by December's Newtown school massacre.

The Senate easily cleared the 60-vote hurdle needed to break a Republican filibuster on a bill that has sparked intense lobbying on both sides, including families of the Connecticut victims as well as the powerful gun lobby the National Rifle Association.

"The hard work starts now," Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, a Democrat, said after the procedural vote to open debate, which won the support of 16 Republicans.

Twenty-nine Republicans and two Democrats voted to block the gun-control debate. The Democrats were Mark Pryor of Arkansas and Mark Begich of Alaska, who face tough reelection campaigns next year in conservative, gun-friendly states.

The legislation still faces many hurdles, including a weeks-long debate in the Senate featuring many amendments that could make the bill unacceptable to senators who now support it. And if it clears the Senate, it would face a tough reception in the Republican-led House of Representatives. REUTERS

Auto. Airbag flaw spurs recall of 3.4 million vehicles

Four Japanese automakers, including Toyota Motor Corp. and Nissan Motor Co., are recalling 3.4 million vehicles sold around the world because airbags supplied by Takata Corp. are at risk of catching fire or injuring passengers.

The move, announced on Thursday, is the largest recall ever for airbags made by Takata, the world's second-largest supplier of airbags and seatbelts. Shares of Takata, which first learned of the issue in October 2011, tumbled almost 10 percent in Tokyo trading.

The recall, also including vehicles from Honda Motor Co. Ltd and Mazda Motor Corp, is the largest since Toyota pulled back more than 7 million vehicles in October. REUTERS

The recall covers some of the top-selling Japanese cars, including Toyota's Camry and Corolla, and rivals like the Nissan Maxima and Honda Civic./ GETTY IMAGES

Tourists caught no glimpse of the Mona Lisa, Winged Victory or Venus de Milo on Wednesday due to a one-day closure of the Louvre, as guards protested that pickpockets were rampant at the world's most visited museum.

Two hundred museum guards exercised their right to a work stoppage, forcing the museum to shut its doors for the day, union representatives said. METRO

Bras do more harm than good, French study claims

Research. A team at the University of Besancon studied thousands of women over a 15-year period.

French scientists have something they want to get off their chests: Wearing a bra can do more harm than good for women.

Despite years of advice that a good supportive bra was vital, the research team at the University of Besancon, in the east of France, completed a 15-year study of thousands of women that suggested that going bra-free might be better for a woman's back health — and might actually prevent dreaded boob droop.

Researchers said wearing a bra was perhaps little more than vanity and there was no good reason to "deny breasts gravity."

Professor Jean-Denis Rouillon said: "Medically, physiologically, anatomically — breasts gain no benefit from being denied gravity."

"On the contrary, they get saggier with a bra."

He said there was no evidence a bra eased back pain and could, in fact, add to the problem. METRO

CAN YOU KEEP A SECRET?

CNN = POLITICS

Here is a startling fact passed on to me by a former member of the KGB: If you stroll down any street in D.C., chances are you will pass a spy. This is the Grand Central Station of worldwide espionage. Restaurants, hotels, health clubs and doughnut shops are undoubtedly visited by folks who are not precisely who they appear to be; skulking about gathering tidbits of information about the economies, governments and cultures of other countries.

Like Korean pop music, that's a part of globalization we all have to accept.

But in recent years, D.C. has been roiled by a new kind of domestic spy game, the increasingly common practice of political foes secretly taping one another's private conversations and then rolling them out amid much giggling and not a few curses. It happened to President Obama when he made that crack during his first campaign about voters who "cling to guns or religion." It happened to Mitt Romney when he let fly with the fraction heard round the electorate: the "47 percent."

The latest example involves a recording of Republican Sen. Mitch McConnell's team discussing how to beat actress Ashley Judd should she decide to run for office. (She's not going to, by the way.) They talked about her religious views, some rather odd statements she made about airports, and presumably they had the obligatory "Now, exactly how is she related to Wynonna?" conversation.

Anyway, the McConnell people are pretty unhappy. Judd is steamed, too. And honestly, I wonder if we all ought to be. Because while I wish all politicians would just, like Horton, mean what they say and say what they mean, that's not the world in which we live. Both sides need to have frank conversations with their supporters without fear of microphones hidden in the begonias. The growing prevalence of these surreptitious recordings only increases the mistrust and bitterness among folks who are already dealing with enough of both. And that is no secret.

Quoted

"While I wish all politicians would just, like Horton, mean what they say and say what they mean, that's not the world in which we live. Both sides need to have frank conversations about the world in which we live."

Conflict. South Korea and United States on missile watch

South Korea and the United States were on high alert for a North Korean missile test-launch on Thursday, as the isolated state celebrated the rule of the Kim dynasty and appeared to tone down rhetoric of impending war.

Despite recent threats to attack U.S. bases and the South, North Korea started to welcome a stream of visitors for Monday's celebrations marking the birthday of its founder Kim Il-sung.

President Barack Obama said the United States would work diplomatically to reduce tensions with North Korea, while warning that Washington would take "all necessary steps" to protect America and its allies.

Obama met at the White House on Thursday with U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon, who called for China and other nations with influence over North Korea to help calm the situation.

THE DARK SIDE of the Lips

New album. With 'The Terror,' The Flaming Lips put away the hamster ball and get into some legitimate existential angst.

When The Flaming Lips appeared in a commercial during the Super Bowl this year, it seemed that after 30 years as a band, they were ready to present themselves definitively to the masses; as fuzzy, fun-time freaks who roll around in hamster balls and blast technicolor confetti from their tour bus. The minute-and-a-half Hyundai ad crystallized the band's whimsical qualities, which were particularly potent in last year's hyper-collaborative and highly playful project, "The Flaming Lips and Heady Fwends." But the Lips have put aside their playdates with seemingly disparate "Fwends" like KeSha, Erykah Badu and Chris Martin and gone to a much darker place. Therein they found "The Terror."

"The Terror," which comes out Tuesday, finds Wayne Coyne and company capturing the sound of the desperate anxiety that you'd expect from an album with a title like that.

"A lot of times I think Flaming Lips music goes into the fantastical and I think that's great," says Coyne. "But I think this music specifically goes to how life is. Part of it is that there is something grinding away at you. … I think virtually every song on here has this kind of underlying, grinding, non-musical — not even always rhythmically correct — bed to it."

Lyrically, the mood is persistently similar, with very little light coming into or escaping from the songs. On one track, when a high hopeful voice sings "You're not alone" it is echoed by a sobering mechanical response of "You are alone." This is a very different Wayne Coyne from the one who sang about a girl who uses Vaseline on her toast instead of jelly. It's a very different Wayne Coyne from the one who asked if you realized that happiness makes you cry. Coyne admits that when the band began to chase these dark impulses, part of "The Terror" was that they wouldn't be able to return.

"I always know that once we get interested in something it's wonderful, but it's also scary, because it's like 'We're really gonna do this' and you don't know in the beginning if it means that we destroy this other part of us."

But Coyne insists that the other part of the band has not been destroyed.

"I believe it's like having a conversation with someone who is interesting," he says. "They tell serious, horrible stories and then they tell silly, funny stories. That's just the way the world is."

Lyrics

'The Terror' of knowing what this world is about

Coyne says although he split with his wife of 25 years last August, more of the lyrics are related to harsh realizations about growing up, rather than such personal strife.

"When we're young and when we're trying to experience what we think love is, part of us wants to think that 'Without love, what is life?' that life isn't worth living. And maybe that's true for some people, but I think what love tells you eventually, if you keep listening and you keep trying and keep looking and keep wanting and keep failing and trying again, it says, 'Yeah, this isn't life.' Life, if you look around you is in these birds and in these trees and in this planet and this dirt, and you're just like them. These trees don't fall over because someone doesn't love them. The sun doesn't stop shining because someone doesn't love it. And you're just like that. Love is just in your mind and your mind is part of what you're created for. And part of you wants to kill yourself when you know that. And that's the terror. You know that you've got to go down there and explore that. The terror is that you may find out some truths that utterly change the way you're going to view the world from here on out."

Soulidified celebrates the sounds of Erykah Badu April 12 at 8 p.m. at World Cafe Live. / UNIVERSAL MOTOWN

'On & On' about Badu

Music. Soulidified pays tribute to the soul songstress.

Provocative soul singer Erykah Badu has remained a challenging figure since she emerged on the national music scene 15 years ago.

Perhaps part of the reason she's kept her edge is the fact that despite selling her share of records, she's remained outside of the mainstream.

"I believe she's avoided that — that's not where she's trying to go," says Philly hip-hop impresario Dave Ghet. "She's definitely trying her best to stay under the radar and with that comes a freedom. Take someone like Mariah Carey. There are records Mariah Carey can't make."

But Badu can.

The music of Badu will be celebrated tonight by the Ghet-led Soulidified crew in "Love of My Life: A Celebration of the Music of Erykah Badu," at World Cafe Live's upstairs stage.

Dave Ghet, right, leads the Soulidified crew. / DAVE GHET

Badu burst on the scene with the 1997 album "Baduizm," which featured the hit single "On & On," an alluring, earthy excursion. The track and video established Badu as a figure of importance in the music world and as one of the leading lights of the burgeoning neo-soul movement.

"[Badu] can make the records she makes because of who she's become," Ghet says. "She's not at that level of success where it's a hindrance to the creativeness of what artists do."

Soulidified have been paying tribute to the greats for the last three years. Ghet, aka Dave Reynolds, made his name in the national hip-hop scene as Dave Ghetto of Camden, with hood-centric but not hood-restricted rhymes.

For the Badu tribute, just don't expect a recreation of her 2010 "Window Seat" video, in which she stripped down on the streets of Dallas. "That was very provocative," Ghet says.

Skaters: From the ashes of Dead Trees comes a sound that glides forward

Music. This band may have moved around a lot, but their new tunes are anything but all over the map.

Skaters are built from the remnants of the Boston band Dead Trees. But there's a bit of map-hopping to their story. After leaving Boston for Oregon and then to L.A. and losing members along the way, singer Michael Cummings and drummer Noah Rubin finally settled in New York to regroup — sonically, mentally and literally.

Forming a new band with a sound to capture the excitement of their new surroundings, they acquired Josh Hubbard (ex-Paddingtons, Dirty Pretty Things) and Dan Burke (Viva Viva), and began making demos for a free EP.

"When we got to New York all the stuff I was writing was a totally different style," says Cummings. "We took that and formed Skaters around a few choice songs. This is the first band where I've gone into it knowing exactly what sound I wanted to get out of it. With the Dead Trees there was always a confusion because I liked so many styles of music. I wrote songs because of how I was feeling. There's more of an identity to Skaters."

Over the years, Cummings' songs have evolved from quiet ballads to high-energy, melodic punk, but the songs have never skimped on lyrical content. After listening to their EP and upcoming single, you get glimpses of The Clash's "Sandinista" mixed with the feeling you had when you first heard the Strokes' debut. These are exciting, guitar-driven songs that make you move and make you think.

"They're all New York-based songs," says Cummings. "There's a vibe that we want to capture. We're a guitar-based band, but there are definitely a lot of loops and beats and electronic elements."

From DIY to WB

Metro learned about Skaters when the band was just a DIY dream. Cummings was gracious enough to give us their first interview after an intimate Boston debut in 2011. He also allowed this writer into the confines of Electric Lady Studios last month while they were recording.

Their unsuspecting beginnings, satisfied with self-release or possible indie interest, led to a mystique that had major labels intrigued, with several offers on the table before the band signed to Warner Brothers.

Ben Affleck and Rachel McAdams star in "To the Wonder." / MAGNOLIA PICTURES, MARY CYBULSKI

Please stop hating on Terrence Malick's latest

There's a lot of twirling in Terrence Malick's sixth film, mainly by actress Olga Kurylenko. Plus a precious title. Plus Ben Affleck, not really an actor who should take on an almost-silent role. Despite this, the temptation to sneer at "To the Wonder" has been grossly overstated. There are those who have called it self-parody or a debacle — as though no Malick movie has featured pretty girls twirling too much or whispered narration. This is a Terrence Malick film, in some ways the purest example of his work, in others a deviation from the conventions only he follows.

Kurylenko and Affleck play lovers who meet in Europe. Kurylenko narrates, but is briefly replaced by Rachel McAdams, who is not long for the picture. Love lost may seem less weighty than previous Malick topics — war in "The Thin Red Line," America's birth in "The New World," everything in "The Tree of Life" — but Malick doesn't treat it that way.

This is the first Malick set entirely in the modern day; you haven't lived till you've seen one of his patented florid montages make room for a Sonic. It's also the only one mostly in another language, despite being set in Oklahoma. Along with the French Kurylenko, Javier Bardem plays a priest searching for an ideal that's forever elusive. Being forced to read the narration forces you to pay attention to it, even if it's even more scattered than usual.

"Wonder" is more intimate and, at times, more diffuse than Malick's other work. The religious aspect doesn't always meaningfully jibe with the main thread. But let your guard down and you'll miss something. There's something intriguing about the gaping hole that is Affleck's character, who almost never speaks and who is nevertheless the obscure object of desire of two heartbroken women.

"Wonder" continues a project Malick began with 1973's "Badlands": getting inside characters' perceptions at their most attentive, seeking to capture sensations as they're fresh and raw.

Gosling! BCoop! Face tattoos! Sins-of-the-father drama!

Derek Cianfrance is a great director, or at least he acts like one. The follow-up to the break-up saga "Blue Valentine," "The Place Beyond the Pines" is a sins-of-the-father epic told as a triptych, which also casts two of right now's hottest actors (Ryan Gosling and Bradley Cooper) only for them to share no more than a single shot. Cianfrance is like that — he rubs your face in dirt and truth and his own brilliance. It's almost annoying that his films periodically get there, despite himself.

In "Pines," Gosling is decked out in tats, including a bloody black dagger dangling off his left eye. To reveal exactly how his carnival motorcycle racer relates to Cooper's troubled, nice-guy cop — much less saying anything about the film's third section, set 15 years later — would be cruel. The narrative's unpredictability is, after its acting, "Pine"'s strongest suit.

Here are two famous faces, Eva Mendes and Bradley Cooper, in "The Place Beyond the Pines."

'The Place Beyond the Pines'

Director. Derek Cianfrance

Stars. Ryan Gosling, Bradley Cooper

Rating. R

Grade. ●●●○○

Once it becomes apparent where the plot is heading, the picture deflates, feeling small where it once felt expansive. But journey ought to trump destination, and "Pines" is caught up like few others in the detours and mistakes and sharp right turns of characters' lives. Gosling and Cooper each try something, fail, try something else, fail at that, and so forth. Success, when it comes, is transitory and ill-earned.

Cianfrance's direction is even heavier than in "Blue Valentine," but it's also less prone to shouting. And it's goofier. Call Cianfrance humorless, but few megadramas have been scored by Faith No More's basically insane synth doodler Mike Patton.

HARRISON FORD

Hans Solo doesn't want to go there with "Star Wars," but he opens up about playing pioneering baseball GM Branch Rickey in "42."

'I JUST WORK HERE'

Before you ask, Harrison Ford doesn't want to talk about "Star Wars." Or "Indiana Jones." Or any other franchises that he may or may not be taking part in again. "Ain't going there," he offers simply. And he's not much interested in the broader workings of Hollywood as an industry, or why certain types of films have a better chance of getting made than others. But social-justice issues? He has plenty to say about those. That's why he took on the part of Brooklyn Dodgers general manager Branch Rickey, the man who brought Jackie Robinson on as the first African-American player in Major League Baseball.

You were a kid when the events in "42" happened.
I wasn't a big baseball fan, so I think it went largely unnoticed in our family. My parents were old-style Democrat liberals and they were very interested in social justice. But because we weren't so involved in baseball, we didn't really so much notice. I think they were very involved and vocal when it came to the civil rights movement years later. But by then I had fled the nest. So I vaguely knew that something was happening, but I wasn't a sports fan, didn't follow sports.

Did you ever become a baseball fan?
Nope, nope. You know, I learned what I needed to learn about the business of baseball, what was going on in baseball and who these characters were that were coming into my office as elements in the story. But that's the depth of my knowledge.

Do you see any parallels

It was worth a shot

On 'Star Wars'

The following is what happens when you ask Harrison Ford to talk about "Star Wars."

So, about "Star Wars" ...

Not going there.

"I've always tried to play characters different to what I've recently played — except in the case of a franchise kind of character, and that's a whole different ball game." Harrison Ford between Jackie Robinson's struggle for racial acceptance and the current battle for marriage equality?

I think there's a metaphor you can reach for, according to your own interests and your own understanding and your own issues. But trying to create the best expression of the ideals — the most equal society, the best-regulated society, the best-behaving society — depend on attending to equality and inequity whenever it rears its ugly head. Certainly the marriage issue conveniently falls into that category.

It's remarkable how quickly opinions on it have been changing over the last few years.
Yeah, things do change quickly at a tipping point, as it builds and it builds and it builds until there's a moment where the balance of opinion, the weight of experience and the understanding comes to a point where the scales tip in the other direction. We're getting there, we're getting there. You know, you would hope that it would have happened with less resistance. You would have hoped that everyone would get the point at the same time, but life's not like that.

Being original

What is your view on reviving successful franchises like "Star Wars" versus looking for original projects?
Well, I'm always looking for something new, and I think I've demonstrated that in my career. I've always tried to play characters different to what I've recently played — except in the case of a franchise kind of character, and that's a whole different ballgame. But I've always looked for something different to bring to the audience about that character if I play it more than once. And I think we successfully did that in both of the franchises, and even in the [Jack] Ryan franchise, which I participated in for a short period of time.

You recently worked for a bit on "Anchorman 2."
I went to Atlanta to do a cameo in "Anchorman 2" — if you call that work. It felt like a goofy dream. It's a whole different ball of wax.

Is that character anything like the TV newsman you played in "Morning Glory"?
Dangerously close, unless what I did to get distance between the two of them worked.

What do you think of the state of Hollywood in that ...
I just work here, you know? I'm real interested in the quality of my films and the context that they live in, but in general? I have nothing in general to say about Hollywood or the choices they make or what they do. I just don't know how to understand it that way.

I was thinking about how hard it is to get an original dramatic movie green-lit these days ...
I can't even tell you, I can't even attend to that question because I think there were some very unusual movies that did get made. You can't use "Life of Pi" to underpin that point of view. Everything is different, each movie has its own destiny — it has qualities that are unique.

But that one was based on a best-selling novel.
Yeah, but it was largely two people — an animal and a person — in the middle of a blue screen. And often not a real animal.

Harrison Ford: MVP of '42'

Sports weepie.

It begins like a parody of an inspirational sports saga: After a cheesy montage catches viewers up with Jim Crow America, grizzled baseball GM Branch Rickey (Harrison Ford) peers up from his newspaper and growls that he'd like to bring the first African-American to the Majors. Surely the real scene wasn't this unimaginative, and from there, "42" — the first Jackie Robinson biopic since 1950's "The Jackie Robinson Story," which starred Robinson himself — can only go up. Eventually, it does.

The narrative predictably plows through Robinson's (Chadwick Boseman) ascent from the Negro League to getting the Brooklyn Dodgers into the World Series (where they lost to the Yankees, which is probably why the film stops there). There is a constant stream of silly biopic scenes that turn reality into kitsch, plus a persistent syrupy score that infuses even the most perfunctory moments with Importance.

But it's no "Remember the Titans." This isn't a mere comforting history lesson of racism overcome, its actions tucked snugly away in the past where they can't hurt us. Although sometimes comically simplistic, other times "42" heads right into the thick of it. Robinson is treated less like a human than someone designated to be the anger magnet for a country undergoing violent growing pains. Robinson remains stoic against perpetual verbal assaults: There are at least as many N-words dropped here as in "Django Unchained." Rickey claims such abuse is important for getting people on the side of the abused, thus tricking the populace into progress.

It's times like these that "42" seems savvier than it tends to let on. A stiff production, it's still enlivened by a hilariously grouchy Ford. Soaking up his dialogue with a lower register that sounds like a Sam Elliott impersonation, he's the film's real MVP.

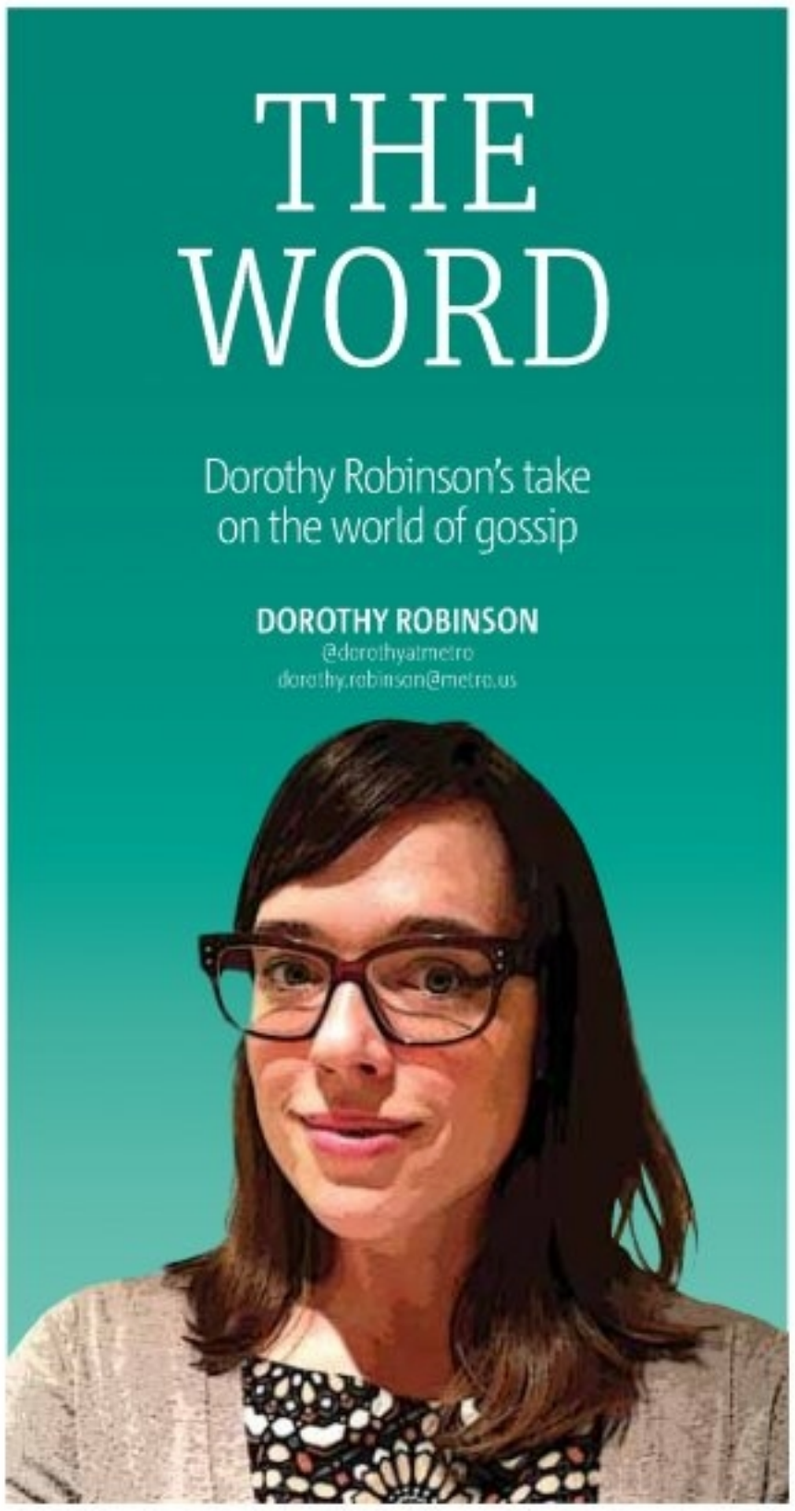
1 Kristen Stewart parties with ... Hanson?

Look. I know the members of Hanson are old and they have, like, 23 kids among them (even the baby drummer has procreated — twice.) I've interviewed them several times and the voice on the other end wasn't prepubescent. (They are also supersensitive to people thinking they are teenagers, something I learned the hard way when I squealed "You are so grown up!" to them.) I've even listened to their later albums. What I'm saying is: I KNOW THEY ARE OLD AND CAPABLE OF PARTYING. But when I read on E! News that Kristen Stewart decided to celebrate her 23rd birthday by crashing a record release party for the band at L.A. nightspot No Vacancy, my first thought was, "What is KStew doing with a bunch of 8-year-olds?" Apparently, if you broke out as a little person, I will always consider you a little person (don't get me started on Lil' Bow Wow.) Anyway, according to E!, the birthday girl arrived around 11 p.m. with Robert Pattinson and about 10 friends in tow, though it was unclear if they knew ahead of time about the band's party. "They weren't overly affectionate or anything, but at points they were standing together as they talked to friends," a source says of Stewart and Pattinson. And then Hanson played pin the tail on the donkey, ate confetti cake and threw temper tantrums when they were told it was bedtime. (I'm so sorry, Hanson. Next interview we do together, impress me with your 401(k) plan and maybe I'll wrap my head around the fact that you're aging.)

2 Ben Affleck: Mr. Mom

It's Jennifer Garner's turn to go to work, which means husband Ben Affleck will be staying home with the kids, the "Argo" director reveals, according to Us Weekly. "She's got a couple of movies coming up. There's going to be a little Mr. Mom action, and I'm going to get back in the ring," Affleck says. "She told me to go to the gym. I'm preparing myself. I'm going to take on some more of the burden."

Or, you know, he's trying to make it up to her after his horrific Oscar speech where he called their marriage "hard work."



3 Rihanna is 'confused' over Brown

Reports that Rihanna and Chris Brown have broken up might not exactly be accurate, but that doesn't mean the couple is happy, according to Us Weekly. A source tells the magazine that while the pair hasn't actually split up, they are fighting all the time. "Every second it's a blowup and then full-on in love," the source says. "She's touring and working her ass off, and he's working his off in the studio," and those busy schedules are adding to the stress. Rihanna is even using work to vent some of her frustrations, asking an audience at an L.A. concert this week, "How many of you are in love? How many of you hate love? How many of you don't f—ing understand it? I'm in that group. The confused group." You're confused? I've been writing about this craziness for years. How do you think I feel?

4 Madonna treated like a regular person

Madonna's ongoing feud with Malawi President Joyce Banda isn't getting any better, with Banda now blasting the singer for reportedly demanding expedited travel privileges for herself and her entourage for a recent visit to the country, according to Yahoo! News. "Granted, Madonna is a famed international musician," Banda says in a statement. "But that does not impose an injunction of obligation on any government under whose territory Madonna finds herself, including Malawi, to give her state treatment. Such treatment, even if she deserved it, is discretionary, not obligatory." Madonna and company instead had to queue up with regular passengers and were reportedly frisked before being allowed through security.

A taste of spring in a jar

Weekend recipe.
Strawberry-blueberry crisp baked in a jar

This gorgeous recipe serves four.

Ingredients

- 2 cups fresh blueberries (about 11 ounces)
- 2 cups fresh strawberries, washed, hulled and quartered (about 11 ounces)
- ¼ cup granulated sugar
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- ½ teaspoon finely grated lemon zest
- 1 tablespoon freshly squeezed lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1/3 cup slivered almonds (about 1½ ounces), finely chopped
- ¼ cup all-purpose flour
- ¼ cup packed dark brown sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon fine salt
- 3 tablespoons cold unsalted butter, cut into 6 pieces

Baking these crisps right in the jar makes portion control and transportation to picnics and barbecues easy, plus they're really cute. Mix together blueberries, strawberries, a little lemon and some cornstarch, and then pile the mixture into tempered-glass Mason jars. Cover with a blanket of butter-sugar-almond topping and bake until bubbling and browned. Dollop with whipped cream and enjoy your own personal-size dessert.

Directions

1 Heat the oven to 375°F and arrange a rack in the middle. Line a baking sheet with parchment paper or foil; set aside.

2 Combine the blueberries, strawberries, granulated sugar, cornstarch, lemon zest, lemon juice and vanilla in a large bowl and toss to coat the berries; set aside.

3 Whisk the almonds, flour, brown sugar and salt in a large bowl until evenly combined. Using your hands, blend the butter pieces thoroughly into the dry ingredients until you can form the mixture into a single ball, about 2 minutes. Divide the ball into 4 equal pieces and form the pieces into patties about 2½ inches wide; set aside.

Special equipment

You'll need 4 (½-pint) wide-mouth Mason jars for this recipe.

4 Stir the berry mixture to redistribute the juices, then divide it among the jars. Place 1 almond-butter patty on top of the berries in each jar, pressing gently to compact the berries.

5 Evenly space the jars on the prepared baking sheet and bake until the topping is dark golden brown and crispy and the liquid is bubbling around the edges of the jar, about 30 minutes. Let cool on a rack at least 30 minutes before serving. If not serving right away, let the crisps cool to room temperature, cover and refrigerate for up to 4 days.

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20. Commercial involvements continue to look pretty good for you, so give this area top priority.

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21. Don't let a project of personal importance be taken out of your hands. .

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20. Although your ambitions will be easily stimulated, the urge to achieve them might be lacking. This will be due to a lack of self-confidence.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22. If you want your friends to treat you well, you must first project warmth toward them. They'll be analyzing your level of commitment.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. The best way to enhance your image is by letting others know how easygoing you are.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. This can be a very pleasant day if you take a middle-of-the-road attitude and allow destiny to take its course.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. Try to spend a little time outdoors, engaging in an activity that stimulates.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. One of your greatest attributes is an ability to effectively manage others. Your pure motives will be clear to your colleagues.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. If you are restless, a change of scenery could help. Observing others might fill the bill.

Iron Lady beats Iron Curtain

Great Britain has lost a great leader and America has lost a great friend and most valuable ally in the person of Margaret Thatcher. Here was a woman who broke into the boys club and forced the many to stand up and listen. Along with Ronald Reagan and Pope John Paul II, she caused the evil empire to be crushed. All freedom-loving people around the world will truly miss the Iron Lady. Margaret Thatcher, thanks for being there when we needed you the most. May you rest in peace for a job well done. FREDERICK R. BEDELL JR., VIA E-MAIL

Getting into US proves a slippery slope

It just goes to show you if enough people break the law, you get your way. I doubt Mexico is going to the same if Americans enter illegally. Now if enough people rob banks, will they will get amnesty?
MIKE MACE, VIA E-MAIL

Bad bikers pay price

Re: "Driven to break laws" (Metro, April 11) Bikers should obey traffic laws, but I see no reason to impose a license regulation. The reason you need a license to drive a car is that it can easily kill a pedestrian, even when responsibly operated. If I were to crash my bicycle, I would receive to brunt of the damage. Even in the event someone is directly hit by a cyclist, it is unrealistic to liken it to the catastrophic damage capable of being done by a motor vehicle.

Metro sips on spring's new beer batches

What do you get when you put seven journalists (including non-beer connoisseurs) together for a beer tasting? This.

Sam Adams

Little White Rye

Marketing description: "Innocent yet beguiling, this hazy golden brew at first appears to be a classic witbier. But behind Samuel Adams Little White Rye's sweet malt exterior is an intriguing blend of white sage and rye for a spicy yet refreshing kick."

Metro staffers: The brew "tastes like a solid 'beer' beer. So, beer-flavored beer. Remarkable." Some staffers marked this one as their "favorite" but a few found it "very typical." One summed it up as: "Is this Bud?"

SAMUEL ADAMS
LITTLE WHITE RYE
THE LITTLE WHITE RYE IS AVAILABLE IN THE SAMUEL ADAMS BEERS OF SUMMER VARIETY PACK, $15-$18.
SAMUEL ADAMS
LITTLE WHITE RYE

Dogfish Brewing Co.

Dogfish Sixty-One; $8.99

Marketing description: "This beer is Dogfish Head's best-selling 60 Minute IPA plus one new ingredient: syrah grape from California."

Metro staffers: Staffers noted that Sixty-One "smells like marijuana," This is a "good beer for a dive bar" and gets high marks for being "drinkable."

HE'BREW Beer

Funky Jewbelation '13; $11

Marketing description: "A blend of six ales aged in rye whiskey and bourbon barrels."

Metro staffers: Metro found this brew too sweet, "like the Manischevitz of beer." The scent of this beer was alternately described as "gross," "like molasses" and " cough medicine."

The overall experience was disappointing, with one news reporter forcing herself to drink "out of solidarity with my people." Although someone did give it some props by saying it "gets better after drinking other drinks — for once, beer goggles get turned on beer." The label got the highest marks in the entire tasting. "I want that dude's sunglasses."

Ommegang

Iron Throne; $8.50

Marketing description: "With a Lannister currently on the throne, it made sense to do a delicate, but piercing Golden Blonde Ale with Noble hops. Iron Throne is certainly fair in color and soft in appearance, yet it still possesses a complexity and bite to be on guard for."

Metro staffers: This beer is as "velvety as the royal capes in 'Game of Thrones'" and even got props from one non-beer drinker noting they can "actually drink this without cringing." Some thought the partnership with HBO was "weird" but the "tasty" blonde ale is "crisp" and "like a girl beer a guy won't be embarrassed to drink." Although one staffer did wonder, "Is this just Blue Moon in a fancy bottle?"

Shannon Dougherty keeps it green and local

Hot chef. The Cedar Point cook likes a challenge in the kitchen.

Shannon Dougherty's restaurant is located at 2370 E. Norris St.
PROVIDED

Fishtown's list of must-try food destinations has just expanded. Cedar Point Bar and Kitchen opened a few weeks ago with Shannon Dougherty and Liz Peterson at the helm — names you might recognize as the owners of the now-closed cafe A Full Plate, which was No Libs' veggie haven. Between receiving deliveries and doling out tasks, Dougherty told us about the trials and triumphs of the new digs.

Can you tell us about Cedar Point Bar and Kitchen?
Our menu is about 50 percent vegetarian and 50 percent meat dishes. We get our cheese from Cherry Grove Farm, our ground beef and pork chops from Sweet Stem Farm. We get lots of produce from Teen 4 Good. I try to choose the farms and products that I love and highlight them on the menu.

How difficult is it to keep things local?
It's an exciting challenge. I think it's great to start out this way, to know how you want things. It's more difficult to try to incorporate these ideas later.

Your old spot, A Full Plate, was in Northern Liberties. What do you think about having a place in Fishtown?
We found that a lot of Full Plate fans moved to Fishtown, and we're just a few years behind! Fishtown has our kind of people. There is definitely a strong movement towards all things green. There are a lot of great young families raising kids here, and old Fishtowners. And everyone around us is great.

Any events planned for the new spot?
We always did tons of events at Full Plate, and that's still in us. We joked with Loco Pez about closing the streets down and having an awesome block party. We're still finalizing ideas about events, though.

Food trucks ride into Manayunk for StrEAT

Eat. The theme is strawberries at this food festival.

Come get a taste of Manayunk. / MANAYUNK DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

Food trucks are taking over Manayunk on Saturday for the neighborhood's second StrEAT Food Festival. Vendors peddling their wares, from homemade honey to handmade jewelry, will also line Main Street.

"It's a daytime event that really gets people out of their houses and onto the street talking to each other," says Dapper Dog owner Seth Russell, returning for a second year with his specialty hot dog truck.

The festival's theme is strawberries, with local restaurants and food trucks battling it out to see who can come up with the best berry-infused dish or drink. Fest-goers can purchase and sample the creations as well as vote on their favorites.

Gretchen Fantini of the Sweet Box Cupcakes truck is looking forward to showcasing her signature strawberries and champagne delicacy. "With the fresh pureed strawberries and champagne icing, I think it quite possibly could win," she says. "But the most important part is being out there with all the other local businesses. Last year was just a ton of fun."

"It's cool since this is not something you see every day in the area," since food trucks are usually banned in Manayunk, says Alicia Dietzmann of the Manayunk Development Corporation. "People here will get the opportunity try things not normally allowed — without having to travel into the city."

Manayunk's restaurant week kicks off the day after StREAT. "The festival's a way for people from all over the city to go check out the Manayunk restaurants, get a feel of what they like, and then have the opportunity to come back for restaurant week and sample several more dishes," says Dietzmann.

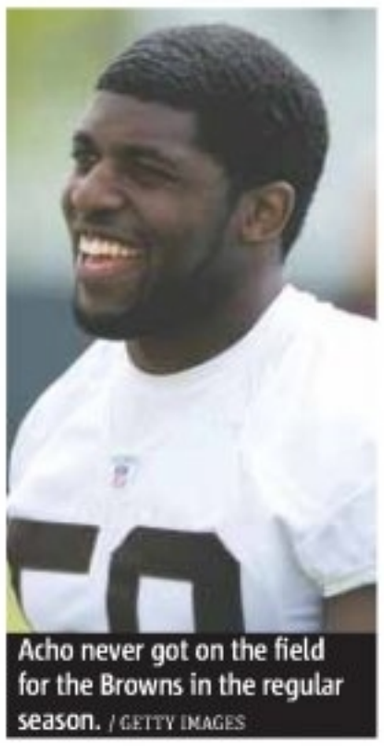
Dion Lewis unloaded on Cleveland after disappointing season

Eagles. The running back was dealt to the Browns for an unknown quantity in linebacker Emmanuel Acho.



Acho never got on the field for the Browns in the regular season. / GETTY IMAGES

Lewis was unloaded to the Cleveland Browns for linebacker Emmanuel Acho.

Acho is still mostly an unknown quantity in the league. He was a rookie last year, selected in the sixth round, but did not play after suffering a leg injury and being placed on injured reserve. He was an elite recruit at Texas and a First-Team All-Big 12 player his senior season. The 6-foot-2, 238-pound linebacker will add speed to a defense that stresses it. Lewis ended up as a spare part after entering the 2012 season with great promise. He played 15 games as a rookie in 2011 and averaged 4.4 yards per carry on 23 attempts.

He was expected to spell starter LeSean McCoy last season and provide some of the similar athleticism. But instead he spent most of 2012 dealing with injuries and fell behind rookie Bryce Brown on the depth chart.

Short stay

Eagles cut four players

The team cut four players from their offseason training program on Thursday, before even making it to the post-draft minicamps.

Linebackers Ryan Rau and Marcus Downtin, wide receiver Ron Johnson and cornerback back Chris Hawkins were all released from the team. None of them were expected to make the roster, though it's unusual to cut players at this point in the offseason. METRO

Sherman elaborates on Adderall talk

It's safe to say that no NFL player has gone from "unknown" to "outspoken" as quickly as Seattle Seahawks cornerback Richard Sherman has in the past year.

Sherman made headlines this week when he was quoted in the Vancouver Sun as saying, "about half the league takes [Adderall], and the league has to allow it."

Sherman claimed he was misquoted Thursday on NFL Network's "NFL AM" show. Sherman was initially suspended in 2012 for allegedly using Adderall, but appealed the NFL's ruling and won.

The Stanford product was involved in two separate controversies in the past year, having feuded with ESPN's Skip Bayless on TV and having confronted Patriots quarterback Tom Brady immediately after the Seahawks beat New England. METRO

Doug Collins may be coaching his final games with the Sixers. / GETTY IMAGES

Sixers' front office may have case of 'Collins burnout'

76ers. Members of the front office reportedly want coach Doug Collins to step down.

When the Sixers hired Doug Collins in May of 2010, critics warned of "Collins burnout" after a couple years of positive steps.

Nearly three years after the hire, 76ers players are reportedly frustrated with his coaching style and the front office is hoping the 61-year-old coach steps down on his own after this season.

Multiple league sources told the Philadelphia Inquirer that the organization privately wants Collins to quit despite the coach having one year remaining on his contract. He is owed $4.5 million.

"I'm entirely focused on trying to win the games we have left," Collins said this week. "I'm not thinking at all about next season. I haven't gone there."

Collins' coaching career has had a familiar feel at three of his four NBA stops. He peaked in his second year with the Bulls in 1988 as Chicago went 50-32. The next year they went 47-35.

In Detroit, he guided the Pistons to 54 wins in Year 2. The next season (1997-98), he was out after 45 games as Detroit had a 21-24 record.

In Philadelphia, Collins got 35 wins out of the Sixers in a shortened season and the team nearly upset the Celtics in the second round of the 2012 playoffs. As of Thursday, the Sixers were 31-47 on the 2012-13 season.

Hurley won't coach Rutgers

University of Rhode Island head coach Danny Hurley has reportedly turned down a five-year, $5 million deal with the Scarlet Knights to stay in Rhode Island.

Hurley achieved great acclaim as head coach at St. Benedict's Prep in Newark, N.J., and as a player at Seton Hall. He was born in Jersey City, N.J., as well.

Hurley was just 8-20 in his first season as Rams head coach in 2012-13, but has a commitment from top guard E.C. Matthews. METRO

Bye bye, Briere

Briere admits buyout likely

Veteran Daniel Briere admitted Thursday it is unlikely he'll be back with the Flyers next season.

Briere, who has been on injured reserve since March 24 with a concussion, is a likely candidate to receive a buyout with the NHL's new amnesty clause due to a $6.5 million salary cap hit next season. He acknowledged as much before Thursday's game.

"It's reality," Briere said. "You can't be thinking about that.

"I can't control if they decide to buy me out." METRO

Phillies open series against Marlins this weekend

The Phillies travel to Miami to face the Marlins for a weekend series. Miami is an MLB-worst 1-8 on the season and bear little resemblance to the high-money team of last year. Jose Reyes and Josh Johnson are both gone after an offseason trade. John Lannan, pictured, Cole Hamels and Roy Halladay will get the starts for Philadelphia. / MITCHELL LAYTON, GETTY IMAGES
